This is the cute, humorous story of three mini pigs, named Woody, Pippi Anne, and Penny Mae who are packed up in two crates and taken to Spirit Lake to live. Of course, the siblings are frightened, but soon adjust to all the fun things of their new home like the green yard, wading pool, toys, good things to eat, their pig-sized ranch house, and their new family.

I like that this story is told in rhyme. The colorful illustrations are fun, wonderful, and well-done. At the end of the story, the author and illustrator created several fun activities for children, which include drawing, coloring, searches, and facts about mini pigs. I recommend this book for children, preschool to second grade. I also recommend this book for parents, for it is an excellent read-aloud book.
