Thomas Benner

Thomas, writing the Utopia Saga, a Science Fiction series, recently joined Spokane Authors. He has had a career as varied as his characters. He is an honorably discharged veteran of the United States Army, having served during the Vietnam era in a variety of postings. A deaf, disabled veteran, Thomas has been a clinical psychologist, a bison rancher in Montana, a corporate executive, an educator, and a SCUBA instructor. For fun, he has sailed the oceans in sailboats, climbed mountains, and flown airplanes. He brings this remarkably diverse background into the writing of his inaugural science fiction novel, the first in a saga of ten novels. Married, he and his wife Renalyn live in Spokane, Washington, along with his small herd of English Mastiffs.

Adam's Quest

1963330013 B0D2XZP9D4

A group of hostile, rapacious aliens wants to strip Earth of crystals, the main component of advanced technology. These crystals are rare in many parts of the Galaxy but not nearly as rare on Earth. They also covet human meat, seen as a delicacy to many alien races. So they launch a stealth Asteroid toward Earth, intending it smashes into the planet to serve as a distraction for their invasion, but miscalculate and create an Extinction Level Event. A friendly alien race learns of this plan, but it is too late for it to be stopped. The friendly aliens confront the hostile aliens in the Galactic Council, the governing body for advanced civilizations in the Galaxy. The Council votes to censure the hostile aliens and forces them to supply large transport ships in an attempt to save at least some of Humanity. The plan is to locate Human volunteers to organize volunteer groups of Humans from selected parts of the planet.
